

healthcare

Increased life expectancy, patient and care provider demographics, and funding are directly influencing how facilities are being designed to support those who deliver, receive and fund healthcare services. Consulting design professionals are evaluating how the configuration of services create efficiencies in the delivery of care and facility operation. They are assessing how the built environment promotes healing while aligning with fiscal and business objectives - including building operating costs. As a result the planning, programming, design and delivery of healthcare facilities and senior living communities continue to change and evolve.

We work with stakeholders, users and professional peers to implement lean methods that align with space utilization.
